

Dear Trainee,

A Thanksgiving Wish Across the Miles...

As we head into the Thanksgiving season, I would like to thank you for embarking on this journey to become a US Army Soldier. I hope you are doing well and adjusting to military life at Fort Jackson. I hope you have settled into your daily schedule and routine. I know you are working hard to reach your training goals.

Thank you for choosing to serve your country. No one ever said choosing this path would be easy. I would like to thank you for your dedication and hard work. Thank you for bravely doing what you are called to do in becoming a US Army Soldier. I am so proud of you. I believe in you. I am here to support you.

You Can Do This.....Never Get Discouraged.....Never Give Up.....Stay Army Strong!!!

Steady, solid and strong
Optimistic, outstanding and organized
Loyal, logical and level-headed
Diligent, decisive and disciplined
Intelligent, idealistic and immovable
Earnest, effective and efficient
Rational, resourceful and resolute

Yes, a soldier is many things, but above all these admirable qualities..... A soldier is a hero.

Thanksgiving is defined as a public celebration of favor and kindness. It is a day set apart for giving thanks. This beautiful season of giving thanks is a perfect time for remembering all our abundant blessings, especially the wonderful people in our lives, near and far, who are such a blessing to know and love. People like you! Thanksgiving is a wonderful chance to remember how lucky we are. Feeling grateful for you. I am thankful for each minute, the great big world, and I am thankful that you're in it! What are you thankful for? May you set aside time to reflect on the many blessings in your life.

Happy Thanksgiving,

Jamie
